

I would support a national call standard as long as states who already have STRICTER laws are allowed to keep those laws. I went from having approximately 10 hangups a day with several more evening phone calls to having 1 hangup calls every few days and less than one evening call per week. I very much appreciate not having to deal with telemarketers, even those from companies whose services I have used in the past. Thank you for your consideration.